Your feedback

1. Do you think Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections?
   Do not support

   Tell us why:
   It is my current opinion that we are not in need of more councilors. So I am opposed to the idea of adding any more. I am especially dubious of adding seats that require a certain ethnicity to fill. I am more open to changing the way the current councilors are elected if there are concerns on representation of Maori interests.

2. If council does decide to introduce Māori seats for Auckland, we also need your feedback on what your preferred model would be now.

   If Auckland Council decides to introduce Māori seats, which model would you prefer?
   The Parliamentary model (Māori wards)

   Tell us why:
   Appointing seats is the easiest way to get a group of people who think the same into a position of power. Voting will at least ensure that some semblance of public interest is represented in the council.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillor's to consider when making this decision?

#492

I would really like the Mayor to consider that he isn't good at his job. Which is odd, given that he seems way too old to have failed upwards his entire life. So I have to assume he was competent at some point. Or maybe the standards for professionals were much lower when he was gainfully employed.

   The views and input of mana whenua need to be considered when Council is making decisions about the future of Auckland. With such a large Māori population, Auckland Council should include representation from Ngāti Whātua (at least one) - this could be the appointed person, as well as representation on other iwi as Auckland has become a melting-pot of various iwi due to urban drift.

Your feedback

1. Do you think Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections?
   Do not support

   Tell us why:
   It is racist and undemocratic. Council should be setting and example. We are one people, New Zealanders. If you set aside seats for Maori why not for Pacific people and the Indian community. In Papatoetoe the European population is now about 20%, and reducing all the time. Will seats be set aside for them also? Probably not because eveyone agrees that would be racist. Racism works both ways. Until we live as one people, New Zealand will continue to go backwards and get more devided.

Your feedback

1. Do you think Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections?
   Do not support

   Tell us why:
   I think being a democratic process election of councillor should totally be based on merit and their worthiness and not on caste or ethnicity based. It is a wrong move which may give rise to other ethnicity demanding the same thing once its number reaches a certain percentage. Moreover I consider this as a divisive move by giving preference to certain ethnic group for one reason or the other.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillor's to consider when making this decision?

#1650

Yes I would like every one in the decision making body to avoid doing something undemocratic and think the way they themselves happens to be a part of that body i.e. through election and not which ethnicity they belong to. How would they feel if their right to get elected to this body is taken away because they donot come from a certain ethnic group.

Your feedback

1. Do you think Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections?
   Do not support

   Tell us why:
   To my understanding, Maori are equally able to stand for council seats under the current system. I can see no justification for any group to have more of a say on the future of a city based on how long ago their ancestors settled in the area. We don't exclude new immigrants from standing because they weren't born here.

   Everybody's culture, values and desires should be equally recognised and if there was ever to be justification for one person to have greater influence in the decision making process it should be grounded in something akin to the contribution they have made to the area, or they have proven themselves to be wiser than the general population. I'm pretty sure the general population wouldn't accept these justifications either.

2. If council does decide to introduce Māori seats for Auckland, we also need your feedback on what your preferred model would be now.
   This would ensure planning could start in November 2023 to include Māori seats for the 2025 local elections.
   More information on the below options and their achievability by 2025 can be found in the consultation material under 'Options for Māori seats'.

   If Auckland Council decides to introduce Māori seats, which model would you prefer?
   A different model

   Tell us why:
   If it was decided that certain people should have greater voting power than the general population based on their ancestry, they should be required to demonstrate that more than 50% of their ancestors settled in the area prior to European settlement, and maintained a continual presence in the area. Otherwise you could have people who have themselves only just arrived in the area being given greater say than non-Maori whose ancestors have been contributing to the area for nearly 2 centuries.

Secondly, seats by appointment should be excluded. Having one body (whether elected or inherited) appointing representatives to another body, the wishes of the individuals are homogenised. For instance, if a minority of Maori supported an idea, but that minority was the largest minority, their appointment would only reflect that largest minority on all decisions for the next term.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillor's to consider when making this decision?

Two kids grow up in the same street. They go to the same school, get the same education and work in the same industry. Yet one of them is told he/she doesn't have the same rights because the other person's great grand parents got here sooner.

I'd like to hear the councillors justify why that's considered a fair system.

NB "councillor's" in the question above shouldn't have an apostrophe.

   Then they are elected by the people. Not appointed. It's more democratic and fair.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillor's to consider when making this decision?
   By implementing Maori seats you further divide NZ. If a Maori is the best for the job, the people will elect them anyway. And as well as that, anyone can identify as Maori these days. Do you have to be certain "Maori" to be Maori and have one of these seats? It actually created reverse racism. NZers are NZers. We pay tax, we were born in NZ. Why give preference and rights to more of one colored skin that another?

   I am disappointed as Pasifika that we are continually speaking about the ethnicity of a person for many roles instead of best person for the job .. should the Silver ferns look at an ethnic based position on their team?

Your feedback

1. Do you think Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections?
   Do not support

   Tell us why:
   This is the 21st century. Auckland is a multi-cultural city with large groups of many different ethnicities. Are they all to have their own race-based representatives? We do not have to slavishly follow the mindless path of other councils. Maori may have been treated badly in the past (so were Chinese and Pacific Islanders, but we don't hear crying from them now about wanting special treatment), but it is now time to look ahead, not behind, with representation from candidates who deserve their place by having sufficient mana from within their local areas, regardless of their race. Alf Filipaina is an example.

2. If council does decide to introduce Māori seats for Auckland, we also need your feedback on what your preferred model would be now.
   This would ensure planning could start in November 2023 to include Māori seats for the 2025 local elections.
   More information on the below options and their achievability by 2025 can be found in the consultation material under 'Options for Māori seats'.

   If Auckland Council decides to introduce Māori seats, which model would you prefer?
   The Parliamentary model (Māori wards)

   Tell us why:
   There is no place in our so-called democracy for unelected representatives of any race. "Parliamentary model" is bit of a joke; I seem to remember decades ago that a Royal Commission (or was it something else?) into reform recommended abolishing the Maori seats and having just one roll - but of course, no political party has had the courage to contemplate suicide by doing so!

   Tell us why:
   Representation should not be race based. Of course Auckland may well have the largest population of Maori in NZ - it is after all the largest city in NZ. That is no basis on which to create a racist approach to representation. This is just reverse apartheid. What about Pasifika wards - Auckland no doubt has the largest population of Pasifika in NZ also. Maori wards are racist and have no place in a country where supposedly everyone is equal.

   Race should have no place. And the treaty is with the crown, not with a local body. Having Māori elected because of some x% blood being Māori would be terrible for future race relations, as everyone will think they are in the position they are because of preferential treatment, not of their own individual unique contribution.

   Support

   Tell us why:
   Maori are the indigenous people of Aotearoa and deserve to have a seat at all (local, central and national) government decision making tables.

   Research shows that there are clear inequities across the board when comparing Maori to non-Maori in NZ - for example, Maori have lower levels of; income, education, financial security, home ownership, and higher levels of; physical and mental health issues, mortality, incarceration, homelessness, poverty, and children in state care.

   These issues can be linked to past actions of the Crown such as the confiscation of indigenous land and forced assimilation of culture (e.g. being punished for speaking te reo Maori to lose their indigenous language), which resulted in a loss of identity, overall displacement of Maori in their own country and reduced Maori to poverty. As a result of these actions, the inter-generational effects can be seen clearly in Maori today.

   It is critical for Maori to be involved in decision making (at the least) in order to address and resolve the inequities that exist, right Crown wrongs and give indigenous people a voice and level playing field for survival.

   Do the right thing.

Please do not rush this decision - there is a general election in October so surely this matter can be set aside at least until after the result of that election is known. Making such a major change for just 11% of the population will generate a huge imbalance in representation on the Council.

About Māori seats on Auckland Council

Te Kaunihera o Tāmaki Makaurau / Auckland Council will decide in October 2023 whether to introduce Māori seats for the 2025 local elections.

A decision on Māori seats for the council is a significant one. It is about how Māori are represented in Auckland, and how Aucklanders are represented by their Governing Body.

Before deciding, the council would like to hear and consider the views and preferences of Māori and the wider public of Auckland.

Auckland Council currently has a set number of 20 elected general ward councillors (seats) with no provision for elected Māori seats.

What we need your feedback on

We want your views on whether Auckland Council should introduce Māori seats. The council will take your views into account when it decides later this year.

If we decide to have one or more Māori seats in the next local elections, we must do so by 23 November 2023. That is why we are consulting you now.

After reading the information and options in this document, please see the consultation questions in part four: feedback form.

Term	Definition
Māori seats	Māori seats are designated seats on a council for Māori representatives.
Māori elected seats	Māori elected seats are elected by those on the Māori electoral roll. Māori elected seats represent Māori ward areas.
Māori appointed seats	Māori appointed seats refer to seats on a local council that are filled by appointment rather than election.
Māori wards	A Māori ward is an electoral area. Voters on the Māori electoral roll elect one or more councillors.
General wards	A general ward is an electoral area. Voters on the general roll elect one or more councillors.
Māori representation	Māori representation refers to provision that ensures a member on the governing body of a council is decided by and represents Māori, such as election by Māori ward or appointment by a representative group of Māori. Appointment by a representative group of Māori is not currently an option in legislation in local government.
Model of representation	The way in which representation is arranged (i.e. how many seats, elected or appointed, etc).
Governing Body	The Governing Body of Auckland Council comprises the mayor and councillors. Auckland Council currently has a set number of 20 elected general ward councillors (seats) with no provision for elected Māori seats. The Governing Body focusses on the big picture and on regionwide strategic decisions.

Part one: context

Why is this decision being made this year?

Auckland Council would like to know your views and preferences on introducing Māori seats for the 2025 local elections. If the council decides to have one or more Māori seats, it must make this decision by 23 November 2023. That is why we are consulting you now.

Previously, Auckland Council faced two challenges in introducing Māori seats:

- a binding poll (referendum) could be held
- our council has a set number of councillors.

Around Aotearoa / New Zealand there was evidence that polls overturned the councils' proposals, meaning they could not introduce Māori seats. The poll provision only applied to Māori wards and not to other wards. The government removed this provision in March 2021.

After the poll provision was removed, 32 of the 78 councils in New Zealand introduced Māori wards for the 2022 local elections. This has resulted in 60 newly established Māori seats across the country.

Auckland Council is the only council in New Zealand with a set number of councillors for the Governing Body. When Auckland Council was created in 2010, the Government decided there would be 20 councillors plus one mayor on the Governing Body.

The Governing Body has previously agreed 'in-principle' support for introducing Māori seats once the set number of councillors was removed. Changes to legislation are currently before Parliament to remove the set number of councillors. It is important to note here that although these changes are underway, they have not yet been made. If this change does happen, it will align Auckland Council with other councils in the country.

With the two previous challenges either removed or being removed, the Governing Body now wants to hear from Aucklanders before making a decision.

Māori in Tāmaki Makaurau

Tāmaki Makaurau / Auckland has the largest Māori population in Aotearoa. Māori make up 11.5 per cent of the region's total population. Their presence underpins the rich cultural landscape that makes our region unique.

A mana whenua group means an iwi or hapū that exercises historical and continuing mana whenua over land in Tāmaki Makaurau. Auckland Council recognises the interests of 19 mana whenua iwi.

Mataawaka are Māori who whakapapa to iwi outside Tāmaki Makaurau. Mataawaka make up over 80 per cent of the total Māori population in Tāmaki Makaurau.

Governance of Tāmaki Makaurau

Most local councils in New Zealand have a governing body, which is made up of the mayor and elected councillors. Auckland Council has a shared decision-making structure with the Governing Body and local boards.

When the Government created Auckland Council back in 2010, it also created a new governance structure.

The Government merged the previous councils into one 'supercity' Auckland Council. In doing so, it wanted a structure that met the needs of both our region and our local communities.

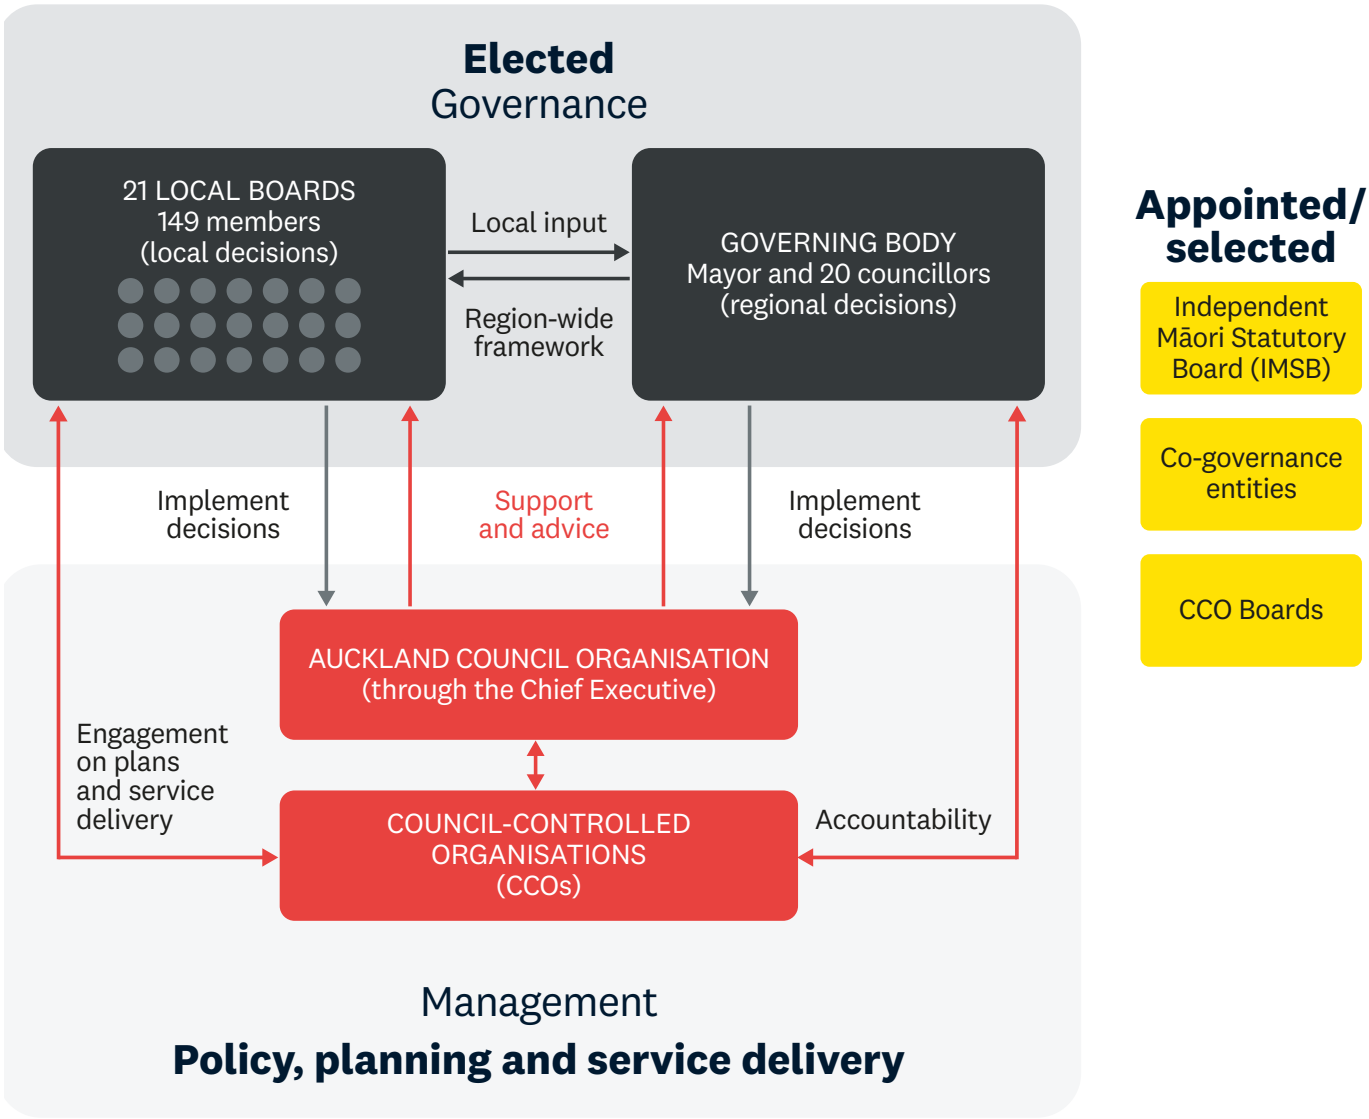

This meant that we needed a structure unlike any of the other local councils throughout the country.

Auckland Council has a Governing Body made up of the mayor and 20 elected ward councillors from the 13 ward areas. The Governing Body looks after regional issues that affect all of Auckland such as large regional parks and planning for housing and infrastructure.

We also have 21 local boards within the Auckland region who look after the issues important to their local communities. In this way the decision-making of Auckland Council is shared between the Governing Body and the local boards.

The legislation that created Auckland Council also created the Independent Māori Statutory Board (IMSB), which is discussed further in the next section.

The diagram below shows how all the parts of Auckland Council work together. You can read more about the council's governance structure by here

The Independent Māori Statutory Board

The Independent Māori Statutory Board is independent of Auckland Council, and a statutory body (meaning it is set up by law).

The IMSB has a statutory purpose and role to assist the council to make decisions by monitoring the council against its Te Tiriti o Waitangi / Treaty of Waitangi obligations.

The IMSB also promotes issues of significance to Māori in Tāmaki Makaurau. You can find out more about the Independent Māori Statutory Board and its work by visiting here

Auckland Council has several committees of the Governing Body (mayor and councillors). These committees make sure that the right amount of attention can be paid to each important area of decision-making.

The IMSB participates in council decisions, including as members of council committees. Legislation requires the IMSB to appoint two members to each committee that deals with the management and stewardship of natural and physical resources. IMSB members may also sit on other committees with consent.

The IMSB cannot appoint any members to the Governing Body. For the Governing Body to include Māori seats under the current law, Auckland would need to establish one or more Māori wards which would elect Māori seats.

The Government's intention when it established the IMSB was to enhance Māori participation in decision-making. The Government did not see the IMSB as a replacement for Māori representation on the Auckland Council Governing Body.

What's the difference between Māori participation and Māori representation?

Representation and participation may seem similar, but in this context, they have different meanings.

- Māori representation refers to the provision of Māori seats on Auckland Council's Governing Body. Māori representatives on Governing Body would have all the same functions, powers, responsibilities, rights, and duties as the other Governing Body members.
- Māori participation refers to the ability for Māori to influence policy and decision-making by Auckland Council.

While participation and representation are related, they are not the same thing. Both are important for making sure that local government responds to the needs of the community.

Part two: Māori seats for Auckland Council #5442

What does 'Māori seats' mean?

Māori seats, as the term is used in this document, are designated seats on a council for Māori representatives. Under current law, the council would need to establish one or more Māori wards from which Māori seats would be elected from.

There are two ways to fill seats: by election, and by appointment, although in Auckland there is currently no ability to make appointments to the Governing Body. It would need new legislation.

Māori elected seats are elected by those on the Māori electoral roll. Under the Local Electoral Act 2001, councils can establish Māori wards. Those on the Māori electoral roll for a Māori ward elect one or more councillors to represent the Māori ward. The total number of elected Māori councillors is proportional to the Māori Electoral Population (number of people on the Māori roll).

A council must use a formula in the Local Electoral Act 2001 to determine how many members on a council can be elected from one or more Māori wards. The legislation does not provide for elected Māori seats on local boards.

What does the formula mean for Auckland?

The formula is based on two factors:

1. the number of voters on the Māori electoral roll, and
2. the total number of ward councillors on the Governing Body, which is currently set at 20.

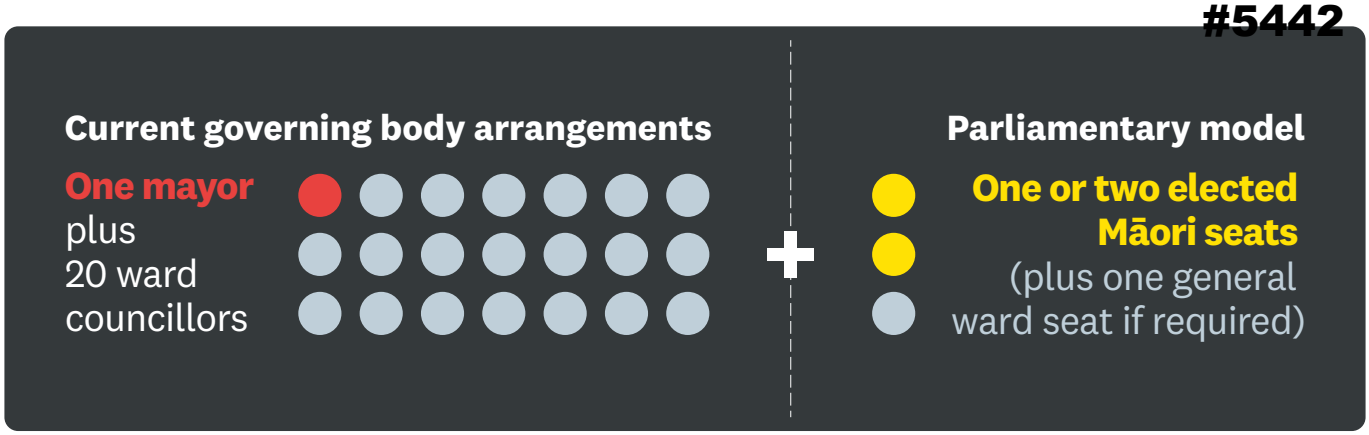

The table below shows how many Māori ward seats are allowed, depending on the number of ward councillors only:

Number of ward councillors	Number of councillors elected by Māori ward
0 - 7	0
8 - 22	1
23 - 29	2

Under the current legislation, Auckland Council's set number of 20 ward councillor seats means that we are eligible to establish one Māori ward seat. This would require one of the existing general ward seats to be disestablished.

If the set number of councillors for Auckland Council is removed, we will be eligible to have either one or two Māori elected seats through the formula provided in the Local Electoral Act 2001.

If Auckland Council has any number of councillors between eight and 22, then we are eligible for one Māori elected seat. If council has any number of councillors between 23 and 29, then we are eligible for two elected Māori seats. So, the total number of councillors has an effect on how many elected Māori seats we are eligible for.

The decision on how many Māori elected seats would be introduced is made through a process called a representation review, which will be explained in Part Three: Next Steps.

The model described above is currently allowed under the law for Māori seats in local government.

Parliamentary Māori electorate seats are also calculated using the Māori Electoral Population. This is why we sometimes refer to this model as the Parliamentary model. You can read more about this by here.

Māori appointed seats are seats filled by appointment rather than election, and the seats may be appointed in several ways, e.g. through a selection panel or a mana whenua forum.

The selection panel may consist of mana whenua representatives (members of an iwi/mana whenua group). An example of a mana whenua forum is the Tāmaki Makaurau Mana Whenua Forum. The forum's membership includes 19 mana whenua iwi/hapū and it can make decisions on matters within its authority.

The process (i.e. selection panel, mana whenua forum or other process) would be determined through legislation and help to ensure a transparent process. A recent example of law enabling Māori appointed seats in local government is the Canterbury Regional Council (Ngāi Tahu Representation) Act 2022.

Options for Māori seats

The Parliamentary model is the only way to introduce Māori seats without having to make any changes to legislation. Since 2021, Auckland Council has been exploring what other models might also work for Auckland.

Any model of Māori representation other than the Parliamentary model would require changes to legislation. These changes might include Māori appointed seats or other restructuring of the current arrangements.

One way to advocate for change to legislation is through a local bill. A local bill is a type of legislation that affects a particular area. The Ngāi Tahu Representation Act example above is a local bill that made changes to the law for the Canterbury Regional Council area.

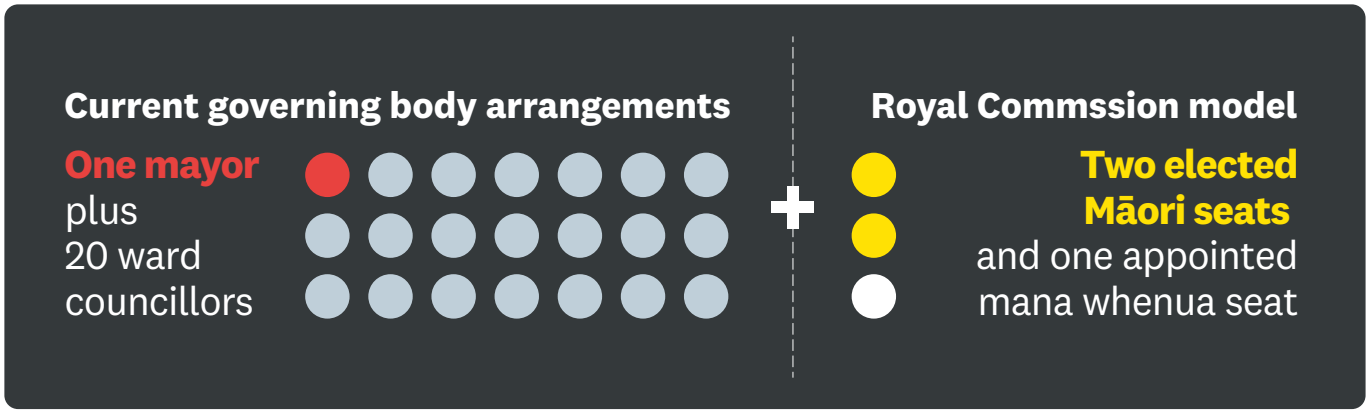

A model that has received some support[2] and would require changes to legislation through a local bill is the Royal Commission model.

The Royal Commission model

Before Auckland Council was established in 2010, the Government ordered an official investigation into how it might be set up. The Royal Commission model is based on the Royal Commission on Auckland Governance findings.

[2] For more information on support expressed so far, please refer to the section titled 'What views are there on this decision?'

The Royal Commission recommended three safeguarded Māori seats on Auckland Council: two Māori elected seats (elected from the Māori electoral roll) and one appointed mana whenua seat (selected by a mana whenua forum).

If the council chose the Royal Commission model as the preferred model, we would need to seek a change to legislation. It is difficult to predict how long this could take.

An example of legislative change to introduce appointed Māori seats, the Canterbury Regional Council (Ngāi Tahu Representation) Act 2022 took nine months. While this is a helpful example, it doesn't mean the timing would be the same for Auckland Council.

The table below presents options for Māori seats for Auckland Council and provides a brief overview of what each model will look like for Auckland Council.

The achievability for 2025 refers to the likelihood of the model being able to be introduced in time for the 2025 local elections.

	Do nothing	Parliamentary model	Royal Commission model	Any other model
Description	Maintain the existing representation arrangements for Auckland Council without specific Māori representation	One or two elected Māori ward members on the Governing Body	Three safeguarded Māori seats. One member appointed by mana whenua and two elected Māori ward members	To be determined through further work
Achievability for 2025	Achievable	Achievable	Requires legislative change	Requires legislative change

Views so far on Māori seats

#5442

Auckland Council, the Independent Māori Statutory Board and Māori in Tāmaki Makaurau have had some initial kōrero (discussion) on Māori seats for Auckland Council.

In 2017 the previous Governing Body agreed in principle to support Māori seats based on the Parliamentary model once the set number of councillors had been removed for Auckland Council. As this document has covered, legislative change is currently underway to remove the set number of councillors for Auckland Council.

In 2020 and 2021 the Governing Body noted the 2017 'in-principle' support and also stated it was open to supporting other models in the future including the Royal Commission model.

In June 2021 the Governing Body and Independent Māori Statutory Board formed a joint group to focus on Māori representation. Over the next six months, the joint group discussed several possible models. In December 2021 the joint group agreed to consider the Royal Commission model at their next individual meetings.

The Independent Māori Statutory Board has, since 2021, supported the Royal Commission model for Auckland.

In 2022 Auckland Council undertook some preliminary engagement with mana whenua and mataawaka representatives to discuss and receive feedback on Māori seats for the council. These views were presented to the Governing Body early in 2023.

The Royal Commission model would guarantee a mana whenua representative on Auckland Council. Because of this, it has received more support from Māori involved in these early conversations.
This model would require legislative change.

Part three: next steps

How and when will this consultation feedback be used?

A decision on Māori seats for Auckland Council is a significant one. It is a decision about how Māori are represented in Auckland, and how Aucklanders are represented by their Governing Body.

The Governing Body wishes to hear and consider the views and preferences of Māori and the wider public of Auckland before making this decision.

The feedback from this consultation will inform the Governing Body decision in October 2023 for the 2025 local elections. It is an opportunity for Māori and the wider public to have their views heard and considered.

Although the local elections in October 2025 seem far away right now, there is a lot of work that council must do before this.

Other decisions leading up to the 2025 local elections

When Auckland Council was first established, the Government decided there would be one mayor, 20 councillors and 21 local boards. These representation arrangements have not changed since 2010.

Every six years, the council must undertake a 'representation review'. This review determines how Auckland will be represented. You can find out more about this process here and in the table below. Auckland Council must undertake a representation review ahead of the 2025 election.

A representation review is an opportunity for the council to test whether the current number of councillors is right for Auckland. If the set number of councillors has not been removed through legislative change, then the current Governing Body arrangements (20 ward councillors and one mayor) will remain in place for the 2025 local elections.

The other decision the council can make ahead of the 2025 election is a 'reorganisation application' where the number of local boards could be considered. This decision is optional.

Process	Determines
Representation review Required in 2024	Governing Body arrangements (total number of councillors, whether elected 'at large'[3] , by ward, or a combination). Local board names, number of members in each local board (not the number of total local boards) and whether members are elected at large or by subdivision.
Reorganisation application Optional	A unitary authority may submit a reorganisation plan through a reorganisation application. This is an opportunity to review the total number of local boards only.

Because of the size of Auckland, this type of work takes many months. Council staff will start this work in late 2023 and will prepare an initial proposal for the public by no later than 31 July 2024. The council will also consider whether it should look at the number of local boards.

The public will be able to provide feedback on the council's proposals when they are notified. We will share more information on this closer to the time.

3 'At large' councillors are elected by the whole of the Auckland region, rather than a smaller local area.

Councillor numbers a consideration

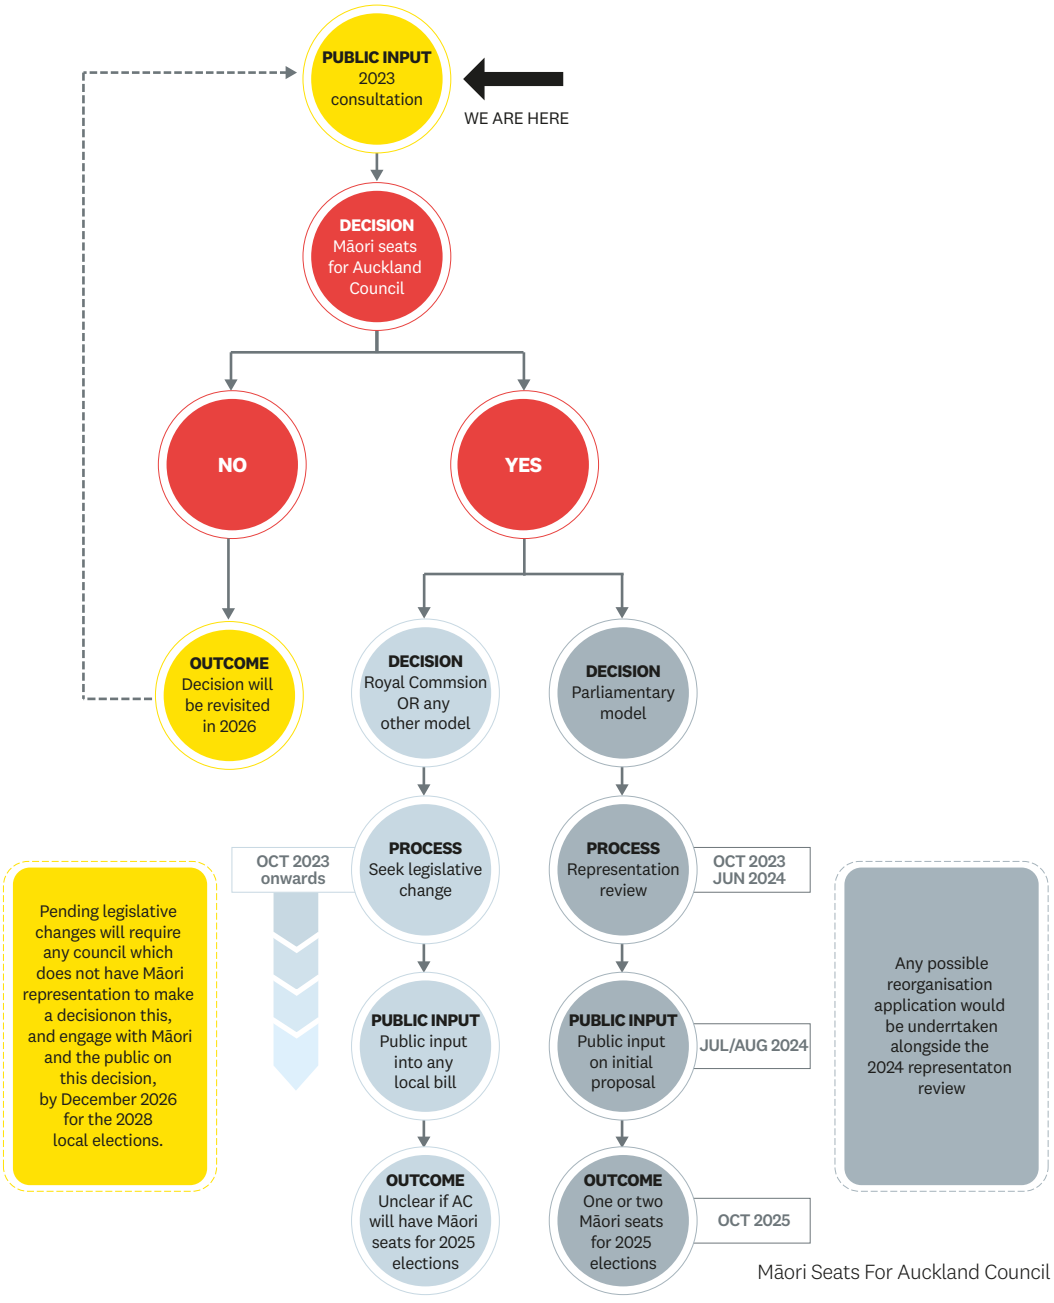

The total number of ward councillors is one of the key factors to how many Māori seats there might be. If the number of councillors stays set at 20, then Auckland Council is eligible for one Māori ward seat. One of the existing general ward seats would need to be disestablished to make this happen.

If the legislative change that is currently in front of Parliament to remove the set number of councillors is successful, Auckland Council will be able to decide how many councillors it should have – between five and 29. This is in line with the rest of the councils in New Zealand.

Auckland Council needs at least eight ward councillors to be eligible for Māori elected seats. This will be a consideration for the council when it carries out the representation review and considers how many councillors there will be for the 2025 local elections.

Preparing for the 2025 local elections

To prepare for the 2025 local elections, Auckland Council has some big decisions to make. These decisions will make sure that the representation arrangements are right for Tāmaki Makaurau. Aucklanders will have an opportunity to have their voices heard at every stage. The timeline below provides an overview of the next steps

Tell us why There is already an Independent Maori Statutory Board and to have further representatio for just 11% of the Auckland population is a huge imbalance.

If council does decide to introduce Māori seats for Auckland, we also need your feedback on what your preferred model would be now. This would ensure planning could start in November 2023 to include Māori seats for the 2025 local elections. More information on the below options and their achievability by 2025 can be found in the consultation material under 'Options for Māori seats'.

2. If Auckland Council decides to introduce Māori seats, which model would you prefer?

- [ ] The Royal Commission model

- [ ] No preference

Tell us why I am concerned that this plan is being rushed through and that it has the potential to further increase the widening divide between Maori and the rest of the population of Auckland.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillors to consider when making this decision?

No decisions on this matter should be taken without a Yes/No binding poll so that all Aucklanders can participate. Most people are so busy working and trying to cope with the cost of living that I doubt they will feel able to read the very complex documentation provided here, let alone take the time to actually complete the return.

   I believe in fair and equal representation for all peoples, no matter their heritage, race, culture or religion. I also believe in the democratic method of representation; one man, one vote. This new idea of the introduction of Council Seats being allocated and reserved for a specific group, no matter how they may be, is both undemocratic and unjust. We should all be treated and regarded as equal. We should be looked at as one people, in one city, all equal within and with no favoritism of any kind.

   Auckland is the largest multi-cultural city in the world, so I am informed, so why would anyone consider a racial separatism idea. We may have the largest population of those that claim a Maori ancestral heritage but we also have the largest Pacifica population as well, in the world. And then there is the Asian contingent. And so it goes on. Let's treat everyone the same, equally, and build a great city for everyone, by everyone and where everyone is equal.

   Race based unelected seats on councils & ,city wards ,as well as 10 Waters is totally undemocratic and racist policy, this has no place in our society ,as practiced by this rogue Labour government of NZ, that seeks to influence all of our society into thrusting Moari culture down on us ,The Maori population represent less than 16% of the population ,and there are no 100% pure blood moari alive in NZ! My father went to ww2 to fight for democracy ,to uphold the principles of freedom of choice, freedom of association and one person one vote, The treaty of Waitangi in article 3 makes all people under the crown equal ,No more no less, there is no such thing as a selected partnership with any group of people ,dependent

Subject: Feedback on the Introduction of Maori Seats Consultation for 2025

Dear [Recipient's Name],

I hope this email finds you well. I am writing to provide my feedback on the Auckland Council's consultation regarding the introduction of Maori seats for 2025. As a concerned citizen, I believe it's essential to critically examine the arguments put forth for this proposal and to ensure that our democratic principles are upheld.

While I understand the importance of ensuring equitable representation, I have identified several flaws in the arguments supporting the introduction of Maori seats. These concerns are crucial for maintaining fairness, transparency, and the principles that our society values.

1. Misleading Representation of IMSB's Authority: The Independent Maori Statutory Board (IMSB) already provides specific Maori participation within the Auckland Council. The consultation document appears to downplay the level of authority and influence that the IMSB already holds in the decision-making processes of the Council. Furthermore, the lack of clarity in explaining that Maori Wards would be additional to the IMSB raises questions about the true motives behind this proposal.

2. Exclusion of IMSB from Consultation: The consultation form does not mention the IMSB at all, despite its central role in the discussion. This omission undermines the comprehensiveness of the consultation process and raises concerns about the thoroughness of information being provided to the public.

3. Limited Maori Representation: Auckland Council's own data indicates that Maori constitute only 11% of the city's population. Moreover, a significant portion of this Maori population identifies with iwi outside the Auckland region. This makes the case for separate Maori representation challenging, particularly when considering the concept of 'mana whenua' representation.

4. Treaty Obligations and Crown Entity Status: It's important to clarify that Auckland Council is not a Crown entity and, therefore, does not hold Treaty partner obligations. The argument for Maori representation based on Treaty obligations appears to be misinformed. If Maori representation is being pursued, then equal consideration should be given to other race-based groups, as fairness dictates.

5. Precedent for Unelected Representation: The reference to the Canterbury Regional Council (Ngai Tahu Representation) Act raises concerns about the potential establishment of unelected representation with full voting rights. This precedent challenges the principles of democracy and equal representation that our society is built upon.

6. Timing of Consultation: The timing of this consultation during a general election campaign raises suspicions about the urgency and motives behind this proposal. It's essential to ensure that such significant decisions are made in an environment free from political distractions.

7. Lack of Public Involvement: The apparent meetings between Auckland Council and Maori stakeholders before broader public consultation raises concerns about inclusivity and transparency. Decisions of this magnitude should involve all affected parties in an open and unbiased manner.

8. Erosion of Democratic Processes: The recent changes to prevent referenda on council representation changes, coupled with the pursuit of Maori seats, raise concerns about the erosion of democratic accountability and citizens' ability to participate in shaping their local governance.

In conclusion, the Auckland Council's consultation on the introduction of Maori seats for 2025 raises several valid concerns about the transparency, fairness, and democratic principles that we value in our society. It's important to address these issues thoroughly before making any decisions that will have lasting impacts on our local governance.

I urge the Auckland Council to take these concerns into account and to ensure that the consultation process is inclusive, transparent, and truly representative of all Aucklanders. Our democracy deserves nothing less.

Thank you for considering my feedback. I trust that you will carefully evaluate the points raised and make decisions that reflect the best interests of all New Zealanders.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

   Weight the responses you get as you're obviously going to get a tidal wave of racist "no's" to this question, but they do not represent all of Auckland, just those who know about this survey, can access it and can understand it. The nature of ~200 years of systemic racism means that non-respondents have the most to gain and lose based on the decision council makes here.

   The Royal Commission model

   Tell us why:
   Royal Commission model allows for Mana Whnua representation. Te Tiriti was signed by iwi and hapu, therefore Mana Whenua must have representation on the Governing Body. In addition, the IMSB members should be kept on the committees to ensure Maori representation at every committee. There is no guarantee that future mayors will appoint the elected Maori/Manawhenua Councillors to all committees.

3. Is there anything else you would like the mayor and councillor's to consider when making this decision?

#7287

Maori and Mana Whenua in particular are a sizeable minority, therefore their rights to representation is open to being out voted. However, this country was founded on Te Tiriti. Therefore Councillors should do what's right, and not adhere to the tyranny of the majority.

In my experience as a Māori woman on governance boards, it is my experience that being the only Māori is very culturally unsafe.
